

TWO FORT FIREMEN HURLED TO DEATH

KING ADVISED TO LEAVE GREECE AS REGIME TOTTERS
KOUNDOURIOTIS WILL BE REGENT, LONDON REPORTS.
REPUBLIC NEXT?
Either French or American Plan Expected to Result from Sunday Vote.

BULLETIN
Athens, (Associated Press)—King George and Queen Elizabeth have left Athens tonight for Rumania. It is announced by the newspapers here today.
The natural inquiry is whether the passage of the bonus bill will kill tax revision. The present indications are that the bonus bill will be added without providing a plan to finance it, and that once the expenditure is authorized the king will resign.

SEE LITTLE CHANCE OF SAVING GEORGE'S THRONE
London.—British diplomats who are familiar with the delicate political situation in Greece see little chance of saving King George's throne and the foreign office apparently has been reconciled to the fact that he must go.
The British charge frequently has informed the present revolutionary regime in Athens that Great Britain will view with disfavor any violent change in dynasty, but the military junta apparently found it futile to attempt to sway the extreme elements in the liberal and moderate parties from their desire to banish Constantine's son in order to make way for the return of their great idol Venizelos and the establishment of the republic.

France, Italy, Jugo-Slavia and Rumania also have made overtures to King George, but the king has refused to turn over to them the throne. The king's position is now a desperate one. He is surrounded by a small group of loyalists, but they are unable to do much to save him. The king's health is also poor, and he is unable to perform his duties.

King George II of Greece, eldest son of the late King Constantine, succeeded to the throne Sept. 28, 1922, after his father had been forced to abdicate by the Council of Regency. He became apparent almost immediately that George was to be a monarch in name only, for the revolutionary regime gave Greece what was virtually a military dictatorship. Nevertheless, there was no disposition to terminate the dynasty, and allow him a semblance of power.

KING LEAVING COUNTRY FOR RUMANIA, REPORT
London.—An agency dispatch from Athens says the king and queen are leaving for Rumania tonight, without signing any decrees and that Admiral Koundouriotis will be appointed regent.

Another telegram reports that a delegation representing the army and navy last evening informed Col. Plastiras that the officers of both services regarded the removal of the dynasty as a matter of course. The delegation also stated that the army and navy were in favor of the republic. The party proposes also to start a discussion regarding the form of republic to be established, the dispatch adds. If the assembly decides to adopt the French system, the noted banker, Sir Basil Zaharoff, will be invited to become the first president; if the United States plan is accepted, the post will be offered to Venizelos.

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington—Senator Smoot, chairman of the senate finance committee, said on leaving the White House Monday that the bonus bill would be passed over the president's veto, and that so far as the senate is concerned, the measure would have at least two votes more than the necessary two-thirds.
The natural inquiry is whether the passage of the bonus bill will kill tax revision. The present indications are that the bonus bill will be added without providing a plan to finance it, and that once the expenditure is authorized the king will resign.

CHEESE POOL HAS GROWING BUSINESS

Predict 1923 Output Will Crowd 24 Million Pounds—Founded in 1912.

Plymouth—"How much did we beat our 1922 record of 20,000,000 pounds or about 10 percent of the entire production of American cheese, in Wisconsin?"

That is the question which members of the Wisconsin Cheese Producers' federation were asking themselves. Officials predict that the 1923 output will crowd 24 millions.

They report that practically every state in the Union has been a receiver of federal cheese. Even staid old New York, once the wearer of the crown for cheese production, is now receiving the Dader state product. The far west has called insistently for a liberal share of the federation supply. Los Angeles is the principal receiving station for the Pacific coast, and last year the Californians bought about 650,000 pounds of American cheese from the Wisconsin federation. A demonstrated success.

The announcement of the record output for 1922 put to rest the backward. Officials of the organization declare that they are selling three times more cheese today than ever before.

The Wisconsin Cheese Producers' federation, with headquarters here at Plymouth, the cheese capital of the world, will figure prominently in the Dader state's plan for better merchandising. It is a bright day for a better day for Wisconsin dairymen.

More than 5,000 Dader farmers are receiving directly the benefits of the federation. Some 200 cheese factories are enrolled in its membership. Almost half of the counties in Wisconsin have federation members. Eight warehouses are handling the cheese at the present time. The warehouses are located at Plymouth, Spring Green, Waubesa, Green Bay, Cumberland, New Richmond, Abbotsford, and just across the Mississippi, at Pine Island, Minnesota.

In the 10 years that the federation has been operating, its officers have handled the equal of 100 trainloads of cheese, with 40 cars to the train. This amounts to more than 100,000,000 pounds of American cheese.

Founded in 1912, the federation is now celebrating a decade of successful operation. Each year has seen a steady increase. Eventually it is the hope of the organization to control the American cheese output of Wisconsin. When that time comes, there will be a more stable price. With 50 or more dealers, many of them very small, now contending for this money, the market is often subjected to conditions out of harmony with the best interests of the industry. Prices are forced down or up, regardless of trade conditions, as the selfish interest of a dealer or group of dealers dictates.

It was back in 1912 that the late Henry Krumrey, a Sheboygan county farmer, caught the first vision of co-operative marketing for the dairy industry of his country. He gathered around him a small band of followers and in the month of June called a big mass meeting at the Sheboygan county fair grounds. Several hundred farmers attended. At that mass meeting a committee of seven members was appointed chairman of the committee. Serving with Krumrey, on a committee was R. J. Melvin of Glen County, who is now secretary-treasurer of the Wisconsin Cheese Producers' federation.

Meets Stern Opposition. "We went about through the county and held big farmers' meetings all that summer and through the winter, working up enthusiasm and backing for the proposition," says Melvin, in recounting the early history of the organization. "The next summer—1913—we were ready for a warehouse. We had a location on the south side of town in Sheboygan, under consideration, but one of the big dealers over there headed us off."

"There has been lots of opposition to the federation. From the very start it has been a rough up. In these early days most of the factories in this territory were privately owned. There was a bitter fight against our project, and plenty of underhanded methods were used by the big dealers to undermine the federation. The cheesemakers sold on contract, and many of the dealers, to keep the trade away from us paid the cheesemakers a tidy sum on the side. The cheese-board held its weekly meetings, but they were often merely a formality, because the dealers would agree on a price before the meetings."

"The dealers are still fighting the Wisconsin Cheese Producers' federation tooth and nail. When organization work was going on for the Spring Green branch, one dealer got up in meeting and contended that the federation was handling less cheese this year than ever before. Our figures prove we are quadrupling our original volume of business."

Benefits Farmers. The federation started out with factories in Sheboygan county only, and was named the Sheboygan County Cheese Producers' federation. When success of the local enterprise became assured, it was found advisable to adopt a policy of expansion. In 1918 a group of some 20 factories in the vicinity of Spring Green organized. About this time the name was changed to the Wisconsin Cheese Producers' federation.

"The main object of the federation is to increase returns to farmers," says Frank Swoboda, general manager of the federation. "This is accomplished by a reduction of marketing costs, by advertising and selling on a quality basis, and by storing during the heavy production months to feed the markets later."

Besides this one great objective, there are three other ends in view. These are: (1) Stabilization of prices; (2) standardization of quality; and (3) increased consumption of cheese. With regard to the third objective, Swoboda has this to say: "The consumption of cheese in America is very small compared to other cheese-producing countries. I have figured out that every week each inhabitant of this country of ours eats a piece of cheese about the size of my watch. If we can double this amount from two ounces to four ounces, we have a vast difference will be made in the prosperity of the country."

Branded Product. Only recently the Wisconsin Cheese Producers' federation has adopted the trade name Mello-Creme for the finest of the fancy American cheese that it puts out. In this selecting and ripening especially and putting out under a trade name, the federation has made a great stride forward. Only a very small percent of their product goes out in this way. Every fancy cheese for quality and for flavor upon receipt at the warehouse before it can be branded and cured as Mello-Creme.

OFFICERS ELECTED FOR TESTING UNIT

At the meeting of the Footville-Janesville Cow Feeding association at Magnolia the following officers were elected: President, Harry Broughton; vice president, Ernest Ballis; secretary-treasurer, George Shoemaker; director, George Drafail. Judging from the report of George Shoemaker, secretary-treasurer for 1923, the association is in excellent financial condition. It was voted to continue the association by getting additional members to replace those discontinuing the work.

From the reports made by the members present it was brought out that cow feeding association work has done them a great amount of good during the past year.

The Criminal Choke Physician.

We have been thinking the better modes of living, the better care of children, the greater knowledge we have of foods and how to carry on with reference to our physical selves for the reports made under the census bureau of the lessening in the death percentages in most of the states and greater cities. But we have another obstacle in the way of health—the physician who is practicing with a fraudulent diploma issued by some so-called medical college or wicked openly as a fraud to men unscrupulous and solely murderous. In Connecticut these frauds have been exposed and many persons have been arrested. In New York state, very rigid about its examinations and qualifications for physicians, the director of education says there are at least 2,500 fraudulent physicians in practice. We have here in Wisconsin so high a code that it may be possible we are free from these purchasers of cheap diplomas. But that is not at all sure until the authorities have carried on an examination such as is going forward in Connecticut and New York state, both by the constituted legal authorities and the medical associations.

If there is anyone in whom we place greater faith than the family physician of the doctor we call in from time to time, it is not a matter of record. When we think that there are several thousand men in practice who have never studied medicine more than superficially, who know nothing whatever of surgery, and who have shingles out announcing themselves as "M. D." because they have purchased for $50 or so, a diploma from some fake school, we are compelled to ask that the most rigid investigation be made and the protection which the state can give to us in this must be accorded.

The public has been faked in almost every conceivable way but when a "doctor" of the character of the ones arrested in Connecticut—one especially who had seven cases and seven deaths in a short time—is permitted to prescribe for a patient, it comes near being murder or attempted homicide.

Mexican rebels said at first they were hitting at the petroleum belt but now they are striking below the belt.

"Santa Barbara, Calif., 32 Fahrenheit"

Tell me not of tropic lands where daffodils are bright in bloom; where golden fruit in clusters hang and noontide suns dispel the gloom; where advertising sheets inform that glorious summer does not fade, but vine and tree in garb of green with outstretched arms give gentle shade. I've read the poet's raving lines until I hoped that I could go where there would come no touch of frost and never once a bit of snow. But when I hear of killing frosts and icy winds that chill the blood, I'm satisfied to stay at home and still declare that this is good.

There is snow in Alabama on the sweet magnolia flowers; icicles hang on lemon trees and California bowers; winter winds have chilled the blood of visitor and Mex. while golf bags hang on the walls the southern tourists vex. So we'll stick to Old Wisconsin where autumn lingers yet, and skies are blue and gold the glow of each day's warm sunset.

Office Appointments Kill Presidents

If Calvin Coolidge falls in his presidential office in any way, it will be caused in greater part by the appointments he makes for offices under his jurisdiction. While it is perfectly plain to anyone that a president cannot possibly know the qualifications of the candidates for the several thousand offices which he must fill, yet we expect that he will in each case pick the man best fitted and able of the party or faction to which we belong. If he does not we have the American inherent right to register a kick and refuse to support him for election. That is what is happening now. In the very first day of the regular session of the senate 2,000 appointments were sent in by the president. One only was confirmed at once—Frank B. Kellogg as ambassador to Great Britain. For this the president was severely criticized by the radical group from Shipstead down to Norris.

The president has enough to do without making these appointments. In the first outburst of indignation over the death of President Harding when it was made emphatic that his constitution had been undermined by the enormous amount of detail which came to him in greater weight than to any other president, suggestions were offered for relief with the hope that offices might be filled by the different departments and responsibility removed from his shoulders to others. But nothing has been done in that direction.

Then too the same thing in a lesser degree applies to senators and representatives. Much of the time of these men is taken up with the importunities of the office seeker who wants immediate action. And the result is a schism in the ranks, and merit be it never so great, is overlooked in the petty revenges of the defeated or disappointed candidate.

Many a president—Harrison was one of the most conspicuous examples—has gone on the rocks of defeat by antagonisms of one faction or of persons disappointed or piqued in naming office holders. President Coolidge is passing through some such ordeal now with several senators who are not plicated by the appointments he is making. Principles of government go into the discard, but if the post office at Perkins Corbors

RAILROADS MUST COMBINE

By FRIDERIO J. HASKIN.

Washington.—If the railroads of the country will not voluntarily effect combinations establishing a few great systems as contemplated by the transportation act of 1920, then consolidation must be forced upon them by congress. This is accepted as the administration program for dealing with the railroad problem in view of what President Coolidge had to say about it in his message and of Secretary of Commerce Hoover's discussion of it in his annual report.

Secretary Hoover not only argues for the necessity of consolidation but outlines a definite method by which it may be brought about. "That this method will be embodied in bills that will be pressed for speedy consideration in both houses of congress is taken for granted."

The Hoover plan contemplates the federal incorporation of the consolidated railroad systems and would provide that after the lapse of a reasonable period for voluntary action by the railroads the Interstate Commerce commission should be empowered to create definite organizations containing the railroads contemplated. These organizations would include representatives of the public and of the component roads.

"It should be the duty of such committees," says Mr. Hoover, "to develop and perfect a plan of consolidation either through the exchange of securities of the consolidated system directly with the security holders of the component roads or by some other method. I believe that under such auspices the security holders would be willing voluntarily to make such an exchange. If a minority should refuse, it would be entirely feasible to invoke condemnation and purchase of their securities for the consolidated systems at an established fair value. Such a method would permit the determination of the relative value of the different railroads considering both the physical properties and the often lower total of their securities, and due account could be taken of future as well as present conditions."

The secretary of commerce offers a new suggestion in connection with his plan, pointing out that it could be provided that some roads or terminals could be owned jointly by two or more of the consolidated systems, as there are situations where such an arrangement would be most advisable in creating more efficient transportation. He also states that the public interest could be safeguarded by limiting the total capitalization of the consolidated systems to an amount not exceeding the physical value of the railroads.

The private owners of the railroads, or at least those who occupy the positions of managerial responsibility of the more important lines, are generally opposed to consolidation. At least they have made it clear that they do not purpose taking advantage of the permission to combine which was a feature of the law passed in 1920. The big financial interests that dictate railroad policy in the United States apparently do not deem it desirable to stringing the weaker roads at the expense of the stronger.

When transportation rates are fixed at levels which permit all the railroads to earn 5% or 6 per cent it is obvious that the larger roads will earn more than that and enjoy a measure of prosperity that will make their securities decidedly popular in Wall Street. It is equally obvious that railway management does not want rates reduced, and when the advocates of consolidation offer as the first argument in support of their proposal that it will bring about an immediate lowering of tariffs it is not surprising that the private owners are stirred to opposition.

It is not known at this time, of course, how bitter or how strong this opposition will be, and it is possible that it may be nullified by the direct or indirect threat of government ownership. A situation may develop where the private owners and their representatives will be told, or will be made to see, that if they do not accept consolidation and cooperate wholeheartedly in bringing it about they may have government ownership thrust upon them as the only alternative solution of the transportation problem.

As it is, there is an element in congress that now takes the position that consolidation will be an experiment that will only defer the day when the government must take over and operate the railroads. Senator Coughlin, of Michigan, is named as one of the leading exponents of this idea. He has said repeatedly that he does not favor government ownership, but that he can not see anything else that can be done.

Henry Ford, who is rarely in harmony with anything that is favored by the great financial interests centering in New York, in this situation is lined up with them in opposition to the consolidation program. Mr. Ford does not want his railroad combined with any other road, and he has made this statement most emphatically to the Interstate Commerce commission.

It is said that when Mr. Ford acquired his railroad he did so not merely in order to be able to haul his own coal from his own mines in Kentucky to his Detroit plants or to get more advantageous rates on his manufactured products, but that he might give the country a demonstration of how a railroad ought to be operated to give the public the maximum service at the minimum charge. The flivver king had the idea that he could contribute toward the solution of the transportation problem by conducting a practical experiment.

His first move was to raise the wages of the workers on his road on the theory he had applied successfully in his factories that that was the best way to increase labor efficiency and ultimately reduce labor costs. He has said repeatedly that the wisest move he ever made was to establish the $5 minimum wage in his Detroit plants, although he could have an abundance of labor at that time at $3 per day, and that his second wisest step was to increase the minimum to $6.

It is claimed that his wage theory brought the desired results on his railroad. At any rate, he was soon ready to reduce freight rates and would have done so had he not been restrained by the Interstate Commerce commission which ruled that he must continue to charge the rates that the commission had established for all the railroads of the country.

Mr. Ford has other operating theories and plans with respect to equipment, notably the size and weight of rolling stock, which he is putting into effect and which he believes will result in a material reduction of transportation costs. In view of all this, he does not want his experimental work interfered with by having his railroad taken out of his hands and combined with any other road or roads.

Observers will watch with interest the effect of the Ford opposition when congress takes up the consolidation program. In some respects it may receive more consideration than is given the opposition that comes from the dominant railroad interests of the country, but it must be remembered that Henry Ford has wanted it to do.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

A CHRISTMAS STORY.

Now, children, if you will just gather about, I'll tell you the story of little Tom Doubt. I'll sit on the floor there and look up at me; Yes, yes, I'll take two of you, one on each knee, and now I'll begin. Well, this little Tom Doubt he couldn't figure out Santa Claus out.

He said that no reindeer could patter a hoof Or gallop like mad on his snow-covered roof; And he said that his chimney he knew was too small, For a white-whiskered saint to get down it at all.

And he didn't believe that the girls and the boys From Santa Claus ever got candies and toys.

New little Tom Doubt said: "I'll prove that I'm right, No letter to Santa Claus this year I'll write. I want a new sled, and I want a new drum, But I won't let him know that I want him to come."

I'll test out the Santa Claus story this year—I won't even tell him that I'm living here."

When he woke in the morning, he found by his bed, The drum that he longed for, the new shiny sled, And all that he wanted, yet never had told. And his look of surprise was a joy to behold.

"Why, he's real! He has been here!" cried little Tom Doubt. "But however did Santa Claus find all this out?" (Copyright, 1923, by Edgar A. Guest)

Q. How could that English woman choke to death on a stocking?
A. Probably she was always opening her mouth and getting her foot in it.

A western millionaire's picture gallery has been destroyed by fire, and he has one consolation. He will never know how many fake old masters he fell for.

WHO'S WHO TODAY

JOHN H. THOMAS.
John H. Thomas, laborite mentioned as the probable selection for home secretary by J. Ramsay MacDonald when the latter succeeds Stanley Baldwin as premier of Great Britain, began life as an orphan boy.

His parents were poor and of the working class. From orphan boy Mr. Thomas graduated to engine cleaner in the railroad yard. From that work he rose to fireman and then engineer on the Great Western railroad. He early began to take a prominent part in the activities of the railway workers and is now rated as one of the most influential leaders of the Triple Alliance. He is secretary of the National Union of Railwaymen.

His first political experience was gained as town councillor for Swindon, Wilts. He has been a member of parliament from Derby since 1910.

LOOKING BACKWARD

FORTY YEARS AGO
Dec. 18, 1883.—The comet is easily visible now being located just within the milky way.—The snow storm which commenced yesterday continued throughout the day. About three inches fell, and drifting was considerable in some places but it was too light to make sleighing good.

THIRTY YEARS AGO
Dec. 18, 1893.—The loss caused by the burning of the house of Hon. W. H. Stark, in La Prairie, has been adjusted. The loss has been placed at $4,500. Adjusters were Henry Tarrant, O. P. Nowlan, and John Watson.—The directors of Oaklawn hospital will meet at Business Men's rooms tonight.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Personal Health Service

SOMETHING FOR THE WILLIES
We still have the saline to dispose of. The third part of the treatment of the willies is really the nub of the ventilation problem from your personal point of view. Install a sufficient number of accurate mercury thermometers in your living rooms and work rooms; make it your favorite indoor sport to keep the mercury, do something whenever it rises above 68 degrees; open the windows or put out the fire or discharge the janitor, but get busy and do something or you'll never get over the willies.

(In order to forestall what might be deemed just cause and provocation for a letter about the willies, permit me to explain them in just the modern, scientific way of spelling what folks generally know as indigestion.)
QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.
Gland Surgery.
They were showing a picture a few months ago of gland surgery, and I wondered if it was the same. Do surgeons, as a rule, believe in this work, and is it really restoring youth? (W. B. B.)

Answer.—If a surgeon could really restore youth by an operation, the chances are the surgeon would never permit a public exhibition of the work.
Child Training.
My patience is nearly exhausted, trying to train my 22 months old baby to use his chair. He started to crawl when he was eight months old, but he never learned to walk. He is now 22 months old and he is still crawling. He is very intelligent and he is very obedient. He is very clean and he is very happy. He is very healthy and he is very strong. He is very brave and he is very kind. He is very generous and he is very honest. He is very truthful and he is very loyal. He is very faithful and he is very devoted. He is very obedient and he is very respectful. He is very polite and he is very courteous. He is very considerate and he is very helpful. He is very cooperative and he is very team player. He is very hardworking and he is very diligent. He is very persistent and he is very determined. He is very ambitious and he is very successful. He is very confident and he is very self-reliant. He is very independent and he is very self-sufficient. He is very self-controlled and he is very self-disciplined. He is very self-motivated and he is very self-starting. He is very self-improving and he is very self-educating. He is very self-organizing and he is very self-managing. He is very self-responsible and he is very self-accountable. He is very self-reliant and he is very self-sufficient. He is very self-controlled and he is very self-disciplined. He is very self-motivated and he is very self-starting. He is very self-improving and he is very self-educating. He is very self-organizing and he is very self-managing. He is very self-responsible and he is very self-accountable.

The second part of the treatment, the tonic, is nothing else than our old friend iodine. Just a wee speck of iodine every day for perhaps two or three months out of the year. One drop of ordinary brown tincture may be taken in not less than a glassful of water, once a day in each third of the fourth month to brighten up the spark plugs and improve ignition. Iodine does that for us. If we get a sufficient iodine ration. Most of us have not attended to this matter for any more. Iodine increases the activity of the thyroid gland which produces a chemical substance which increases oxidation in the system.

Q. How long is the stride of a running horse?
A. The even stride of a race horse going at full speed is approximately 24 feet.
Q. How is telephone service arranged between Washington and San Francisco?
A. The Trans-Continental line from Washington to San Francisco was opened Jan. 25, 1915. It is built up as follows: From Washington to Pittsburgh; from Pittsburgh to Chicago; from Chicago to Omaha; from Omaha to Denver; from Denver to Salt Lake City; from Salt Lake City to San Francisco.

HOROSCOPE

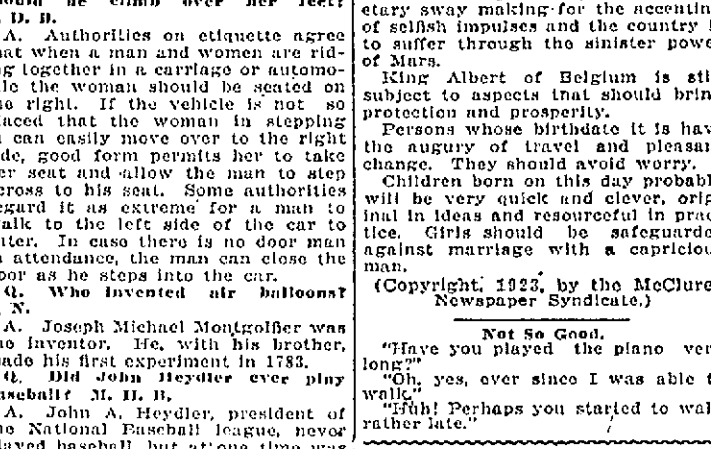

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 19, 1923
This day should be a day of average good luck, according to astrology. While Uranus and Mercury are in benefic aspect, Neptune is adverse. There is a fair promise of men and women who sign contracts or enter into agreements for the new year. The rule of the stars presages success and progress.
This is a fortunate day for writers, especially those who depend on the imagination.
Aviation now comes much to the fore and will focus interest in the United States during the coming year. Inventions will prosper in whatever concerns aerial navigation, it is prophesied.
Newspapers and magazines have the forecast of great success in the next few months for they will be more widely read than at any time since the war.
Again sensational events are forecast and there is no doubt disturbed minds will be greatly disturbed. Lovers will not be happy while this configuration prevails. It is prophesied, for they will be inclined toward inconstancy and misunderstanding.
In the coming year there may be a falling off in the number of marriages, for while there will be much wedded bliss, there will not follow as a general thing.
Love is to be spiritualized in its acceptance through some movement that prevents the continuation of the materialistic and selfishness of the great of human forces.
France is again subject to a planetary away making for the accenting of selfish impulses and the country is to suffer through the sinister power of Mars.
King Albert of Belgium is still subject to aspects that should bring protection and prosperity.
Persons whose birthdays it is have the augury of travel and pleasant change. They should avoid worry.
Children born on this day probably will be very quick and clever, original in ideas and resourceful in practice. Girls should be safeguarded against marriage with a capricious man.

WELFARE SPECIAL ENDS 1923 TOUR

105 Stops in 17 Counties Made
During Season by Motor Unit.

Madison—The Child Welfare special, motorized health center of the state health department, has completed its tour for the present year. Beginning on April 16, the motor health unit made 105 stops in seventeen counties, ranging from the southern state line to Lake Superior and from Lake Michigan to the Mississippi river, according to a report of activities made today by the health department. The tour was accompanied by a trained staff, which was engaged every day in educating rural and town residents in the physical needs of children. No treatment was given, but defects were pointed out and referred to family physicians.

A total of 4,002 children of preschool age were examined during the tour, according to the report. The average daily attendance at demonstrations and examinations conducted by the state was 25 children. Counties covered during the season by the special included: Waukegan, Manitowish, Manitowish, Vilas, Douglas, Polk, Pepin, Buffalo, La Crosse, Crawford, Vernon, Marquette, Columbia, and Walworth.

Only 73, or 18 percent, of the children examined were declared to be physically normal. Dr. Blanche Rivers had charge of the special most of the season, which ended November 15, and Dr. H. L. Sears the remainder.

CITY AUTO CLUB WILL BE FORMED

Committee to Draw Up Organization Plan Soon.

Committees of the Chamber of Commerce and the city council held a joint meeting at the Chamber of Commerce, Monday, and decided to form a Janesville Automobile club. The meeting adjourned to a day to be set for next week, at which time plans and by-laws will be drawn up.

BONUS WILL PASS OVER VETO—SMOOTH

ized it will be the task of congress to find out how the money can be raised. Secretary Mellon's plan for tax reduction is predicated on the theory that there will be no bonus bill. Should a bonus be adopted, it may be necessary to rewrite the entire plan or at least hold it in abeyance until the exact cost of the bonus is determined. Efforts thus far to get an accurate estimate have failed because it could not be learned in advance whether the ex-service men would accept cash or some of the other features of the plan. Faced with the problem of finding the money to meet the bonus and at the same time give the country a more equitably distributed tax burden than under present laws, the chances are that the taxes on luxuries will be retained and that many of the consumption taxes in the present law will not be abandoned.

Luxury Tax Planned
In other words, instead of calling it a sales tax, the "luxury tax" may be imposed. There is a movement on foot to find out just how the country would stand a tax on sales of one-half of one per cent. It will be recalled that the late President Harding was in favor of paying for the bonus by a sales tax, but the proposal failed, largely because of the fact that the bonus itself did not have the necessary two-thirds to get it passed over a presidential veto.

With many new members in both houses of congress, and a concession at campaign coming on, which means that the members fear the resentment of the ex-service men, the passage of some kind of a bonus bill would seem to be the best way to get the country out of a tax bill. On the satisfaction which both measures give the electorate will depend to no small extent the verdict at the polls next November, but the fact that today is the determination of congress to attempt both tax revision and the payment of a soldiers' bonus.

Paid-Up Insurance
Senator Smoot is hopeful that when various plans are examined for the handling of the bonus, the nation will approve his paid-up insurance scheme whereby the ex-service men would be assured of certificates that would enable them and their dependents to borrow certain amounts if necessary to meet their needs. In this way it is hoped that extravagance would be avoided and the ex-service men rewarded.

The fact that Senator Hiram Johnson and William Gibbs McAdoo have both come out in favor of tax revision and the payment of a bonus is regarded here as evidence of the part the bonus question will play in the forthcoming campaign, and members of congress seem to be unconvinced thus far that the treasury is unable to stand both.

The Question of Finance
Unless more figures are forthcoming as to the true costs, the treasury argument is not going to be effective for every time one discusses a bonus with a member of congress who favors it he is ready with a definite opinion that it can and will be financed. The fight is by no means begun and votes that appear to be committed now may be changed later, but on the present look of things the bonus will be adopted and it will be up to congress to find a way to pay for it.

COMMUNITY CLUBS ARE ACTIVE AS HOLIDAYS NEAR

The community club recently organized in the Maple Grove school district, town of Bradford, will have a box social and Christmas program Friday night. Officers of the club are: President, W. G. McKinney; secretary, Miss Maude Crippen; treasurer, Arvel Waite. Meetings are to be held once a month.

Smithton Community club met last Thursday night in Bradford town hall. Misses William Gutzmer and Gus Carlson were in charge of the program. The next meeting will be held Jan. 10, when girl members of the club will furnish the program. Proceeds from a box social held in November have been appropriated to different worthwhile purposes. The sum of $25 was given to the young men's club for athletic apparatus, and $10 was given to the school for needed equipment. The rest of the $52 raised is being used toward the expense of improvements on the town hall.

New window panes and some other repairs have been furnished by the town board. The walls are to be redecorated and the floor repaired by the Community club. Women members of the club met recently and gave the building a thorough cleaning.

Smithton school will have a Christmas tree and program Thursday night, Dec. 20.

At Maknola Corners
The Magnolia club will present a Gazette motion picture program Wednesday night in Dougherty's hall. This entertainment was postponed from last Wednesday night on account of the rain. The club is considering the feasibility of securing motion picture equipment of its own for community entertainment purposes. The program Wednesday night will be as follows: "Child of My Heart," two-reel photoplay; "Ragged Girl of Oz," children's feature; "Screen Letter Box," one-reel comedy; "Peru, the Land of the Incas," and "Hawaii," two reels of travel and scenery. Christmas music will be played on the phonograph.

At Fairview School
Fairview school, town of Avon, will have the same film program Saturday night. Miss Florence H. Day is the teacher.

'Our Brotherhood,' Theme for State Y. M. Conference

"Our Great Brotherhood" will be the general theme of the state Y. M. C. A. conference, to be held at Madison, Jan. 25, 26, and 27, according to J. A. Steiner, general secretary of the association here, who is a member of the committee on plans, which met at Madison last week.

On Friday there will be a banquet for the state board and the general secretaries and presidents of all associations at a banquet. During the day sectional conferences of department heads will be held. Dr. Henderson, Madison, is expected to deliver three inspirational addresses during the convention.

An attempt is being made to secure E. L. Shuey, prominent layman of Dayton, O., and well known in association circles, to speak at the convention banquet on Saturday night. On Sunday afternoon, Prof. E. A. Ross of the University of Wisconsin will probably give an address, as well as Arthur Hugh, a foreign secretary from China, who is now home on furlough. Saturday will be taken up with the business sessions and discussions in regard to the new constitution.

The committee in charge of arrangements consists of J. A. Steiner, of this city; F. A. Hathaway, H. A. Moehlenpaul, Milwaukee; F. E. Wolfe, Fred Larson, F. O. Leaser, Madison; and H. E. Andrews, Portage.

RENEW HEARING ON FORMS OF POLICIES

Madison—Hearing before Commissioner of Insurance W. Stanley Smith on forms of health and accident insurance policies were resumed here.

Following a temporary order by Commissioner Smith last month, in which he disapproved 14 policy forms submitted by the Continental Casualty company, the commissioner ordered a hearing on the forms.

Notice has been given by the company that appeal will be taken to the courts to test the jurisdiction of the commissioner and legality of the forms. The testimony being taken at the hearing will be submitted to court in the test case.

600 Pupils Will Take Part in Christmas Concert

Proceeds of the junior high school Christmas concert to be given on Thursday night will be used for the payment of a phonograph, which has recently been purchased by the music department.

The complete cast has not yet been picked, but will be announced within a day or two. Two aspects of Christmas will be the theme of the entire playlet, the plot of which will be secondary in importance to the numerous musical selections and carols. The entire junior high school, comprising about 600 students, will take part. This will give an ample number for the large choruses necessary. Junior high school boys will act as ushers.

Besides the large massed singing numbers, the newly organized orchestra is expected to make its initial appearance. The production is under the direction of Miss Hardis Hanson and Miss Mable Showers.

POSTAL JOBS OPEN IN THREE CITIES

The commission has been engaged recently in reorganizing its work for the coming year. The principal work along this line has been revision of income assessors' districts and reduction of the assessors from 40 to 31. The revision is effective Jan. 1, when the 1924 assessments will begin.
